LEAGUE MUNICIPALITIES MEET OPENS TODAY

MAYOR LITTLE'S WARM WELCOME TO DELEGATES

MORNING BUSINESS SESSION OPENS AT IRON EXCHANGE HALL AT 10:30 A. M.

LUNCHEON SESSION AT U. C. AUDITORIUM, EVENING ENTERTAINMENT LUM PARK

Registration of delegates, official speeches of welcome and response, an illustrated lecture, reports of officials and a get together luncheon in the U. C. T. hall at noon constituted opening features of the League of Minnesota Municipalities Fifteenth Annual Convention this morning as arrival of additional delegates by car and train continued to swell the attendance to hundreds.

Mayor Little's Address

Mayor Frank E. Little in his opening remarks at the convention this morning stated:

"To say that I welcome you seems superfluous. Brainerd extended you its welcome last year, at the time it invited the League to convene here in 1928. Now you are here, and you honor us with your presence. We are delighted that you came and I am sure you will notice on Brainerd people that expression of happiness and joy which speaks better than words I might now utter.

"Because you are here for a serious purpose, I also should speak seriously. Your field of work is very large and I can attempt to touch on only few subjects. In every community similar projects or problems occur; but in each community one finds a few fundamental things which constitute a guide that determine very different methods of procedures in handling such projects. I have repeatedly seen how one group in a city tries to justify what it may be trying to accomplish by what has been done in another city. This often leads to serious errors, because such advocates are governed by impulses and do not take into account those fundamental things which are peculiar to the other community. Consequently while much has been accomplished in Brainerd about which we feel proud, I do not wish to be understood saying that what we have is the best in existence or that our methods are the only ones to adopt. Some things we are very willing to put forward for your closest scrutiny; and as we hope to learn from you, so you may see some things here which will have an application to your problems.

Describes Brainerd

"Brainerd is a city of 10,000 people. The assessed valuation is about $3,000,000 but the value of the property owned by the Northern Pacific Ry. Co. and the Minnesota and International Rialway Co. exceeds this sum and is not subject to local taxation. That is a very important matter for every investigator to bear in mind.

"On this assessed valuation of three million dollars we levy about 90 mills, one half of which goes to the school district.

"The city is bonded for $402,500 divided as follows:

Schools	$ 15,000.00
City hall, fire hall	75,000.00
Water system	312,500.00
Total	$402,500.00

"Of the above items the school district and the Water and Light Board retire their own bonds, but no tax is levied for the Water and Light Board bonds or interest on these bonds. That Board must earn its own revenue and is responsible for its own bonds, which makes our bond indebtedness really a light burden. In some cities this is met by direct taxation. Because our public utilities are 3 such good revenue producers, and at very favorable rates for water and electricity, you will find our financial structure quite different than is customary elsewhere.

"We have 10 miles of cement roads within the city limits. Brainerd is also on the state cement highway No. 27 leading south to Twin Cities; on T. H. No. 19, tarvia and gravel to International Falls; on T. H. No. 2, gravel from Duluth to Fargo.

"We have 27.54 miles of cast iron water-mains. We pump about one million gallons per day. We draw water from gravel beds, and have a storage capacity of 1,100,000 gallons in a reservoir and an elevated tank. The whole system is operated electrically.

"We buy our electricity from a Power Company delivered at our switchboard. We distribute the current. We have 17.59 miles of primary wire and 26.66 miles of secondary wires. Our whole wire system has just been rebuilt, and nearly all posts are now in alleys or back yards.

"We use the lantern top, concrete post, incandescent lamp, underground lead covered cable system of street lighting wherever possible to install. Some posts are lighted all night and some part-night. We believe that we have very neat looking street lights; but we know that we have the least costly system to maintain that was ever installed. When we have a cost per anum of $7 to $8 per post, and also have sufficient light, you have something that will demand attention.

Brainerd's Park System

"We have three parks, Lum Park on Rice Lake, in the city, for summer sports; Gregory Park, for usual pastimes; and Tourist Park, which is equal to any park in conveniences offered, while its location, on Mississippi river, gives it an attractive setting.

"We have just finished an election to decide on building a new high school, our former school having been destroyed by fire. We expect this to be completed in a year and will then offer for inspection a very commodious structure. At present we are compelled to use various quarters for conducting the high school.

"It is, of course impossible to relate everything which would interest you, but the above skeleton outline gives you an inkling of what the dominant characteristics are which may be quickly brought to your attention or even your view. I hope that your deliberations will prove profitable to you. In behalf of Brainerd I thank you for coming here for your meeting and hope, when you go back home, that you will feel well repaid for having come here."

The report of the executive committee covering recommendations was submitted this morning to the convention by J. G. Brandt, Mayor of Virginia, and president of the League. The report will be acted on at the closing session of the league at Breezy Point Lodge.

The report follows:

Your Executive Committee recommends the consideration and adoption by this convention of the following amendments to the Constitution of the League:

"Section 2. The dues for each municipality shall be based upon population as given by the latest state or national census. This fee shall be payable annually in advance on the first day of September."

Item 3. Amend Article 3, Section 3 to read as follows:

Section 3. The dues for each city, village, borough or town shall be as follows:

500-1,000 population	20.00

5,000-10,000 population	40.00
10,000-50,000 population	50.00
50,000-150,000 population	75.00
Over 150,000 population	100.00

TO SEND 1,500 MORE MARINES TO NICARAGUA

Washington, June 13.—(U.P.)—Preparations were going forward here today to send 1,500 more marines to Nicaragua, most of whom would be employed in supervising the Nicaraguan elections in November.

This action was decided upon following the receipt of a telegram from Brigadier General Frank R. McCoy, U. S. army man in charge of the elections, asking for the reinforcements. His message said that at a conference in Panama yesterday with Rear Admiral David Sellers, commander of the naval service squadron in Nicaraguan waters, it was decided that 600 men would be needed to replace the marines already detailed to election duty, and another 900 for guard duty throughout the country.

Republican Convention Caught in a Tangle of the Stubborn Farm Relief Issue Today

PLATFORM SUB-COMMITTEE WIDELY SPLIT

CONVENTION PROPER DOZES THROUGH DREARY ROUTINE SESSION

HERBERT HOOVER WINS CONTESTED TEXAS DELEGATION

By CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Kansas City, June 13. — Today's session of the republican national convention stood recessed until 7:30 P. M. tonight, with these developments inside and out of the convention hall:

Senator George Moses of New Hampshire was elected permanent chairman and made an address, looking to the coming campaign, reviewing republican progress and attacking the dmeocratic party.

The first test of strength of Hoover strength came in a test vote on adoption of a minority report from the credentials committee which would have seated 18 delegates from Texas, all opponents of Hoover. The report was defeated 676½ to 395½ and the majority report favorable to Hoover adopted.

A farm contingent attempted to gain entrance to the assembly hall to make a demonstration but was denied admittance.

The platform committee still argued on the farm plank, deferring presentation of the report at least until the night session.

Talk of vice-presidential candidates occupied great attention, with a dozen candidates mentioned, and none decidedly in the lead.

Among the agricultural mal-contents there was some talk of a third party. It was not impressive.

Convention Hall, Kansas City, June 13.—The Republican national convention, which yesterday began as a cut and dried event, all set to glide over a greased path to a quick finish, was caught in a tangle of the stubborn farm relief issue today.

The platform sub-committee, after meeting all night, was so widely split over farm relief that it was not expected to complete its work until late today and perhaps not until tomorrow.

The convention proper, therefore, dozed through a dreary routine session. Senator George H. Moses, slated for permanent chairman, sat patiently for hours on the platform while a hot speech to the convention which was designed to jerk the delegates upon their chairs grew cold in his coat pocket. The delay was caused by the failure of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, chairman of the credentials committee, to get to the hall promptly when the convention met today. After a long wait she finally arrived and started reading to the convention the names of the 1,100 delegates recommended for permanent seats in the convention.

Outside a contingent of farmers headed by a band in overalls and hay-seed hats, marched to convention hall and demanded admission "as American citizens and good republicans."

The convention sergeant-at-arms refused to permit them to enter without spectators' tickets. The farmers marched around the outside of the hall several times but the convention inside did not know what had taken place.

The delay in today's proceedings may cause a night session tonight. If the platform committee appears to be delayed much longer, the convention may change the order of business and start placing candidates in nomination late today to save time.

Herbert Hoover won the contested Texas delegation on a show down in the convention early this afternoon. The convention voted down a minority report which would have taken from him delegates awarded by the credentials committee. This was the first test of strength and Hoover came out a victor.

PADLOCK ACTION FOR VOLSTEAD LAW VIOLATIONS

St. Paul, June 13.—(U.P.)—Padlock proceedings were instituted in United States district court here against numerous Minnesota business houses and residents accused by United States Assistant Attorney J. H. S. Gifford of Volstead law violations.

The Jefferson Inn, situated on the Jefferson highway, south of St. Paul was named by Gifford as one of the places upon which the prohibition laws had been violated.

Most of the places named by Gifford were in the Twin Cities.

NOBILE AND 5 COMRADES DRIFT TO LAND GOAL

REPORTED TO BE WITHIN SIGHT OF COAST OF NORTH EAST LAND

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 13. —Drifting slowly on a great ice bed, their one tent painted red as a signal to any searchers, General Umberto Nobile and five comrades today were within sight of the coast of North East Land.

They are suffering severely. Their hands are frostbitten. Their food supply is limited and is being rationed carefully. Only the single silk tent serves to protect them from the rigors of the northern climate.

Ten of their comrades are scattered on other ice floes, one group of seven and one group of three that started walking east. Nobile has heard nothing of them.

Nobile's radio was silent throughout last night and at 9:10 A. M. toway communication had not been restored.

It was feared that the radio accumulators of the portable wireless set, erected by the lost dirigible Italia's crew, had become exhausted as communication had been frequent since last week-end.

There was some hope, however, that Nobile had severed communication voluntarily for a time to conserve power.

The great dirigible Italai, in which 16 men toured over the north pole on an epochal and disastrous flight that started May 23, is a loss. A gondola was ripped off in a sudden descent, separating Nobile and eight of his companions from other members of the party.

The other seven men floated with the great bag and are lost in the great waste area north of North East Land.

But relief rapidly is approaching. The motor schooner Svalbard, equipped with gasoline and provisions, has started from Green Harbour. The steamer Braganza advised Kings Bay it had been successful in breaking free from the ice pack and was returning at full setam to Kings Bay. It will take on gasoline and relief supplies here and immediately steam towards where Nobile and his aides are floating, helpless to aid themselves.

Luetzow-Holm, who was forced down on Mossel Bay because of a fuel shortage, returned to the Hobby late yesterday after gasoline had been carried to him. He reported he had sighted none of the lost explorers in his flight that was over Brandy Bay, New Frier Island and Mossel Bay.

From many points additional rescue expeditions were underway and pressing to the aid of the stranded crew of the Italia.

Two Swedish expeditions left Tromsoe for King's Bay last night. They were the steamer Panja, with three planes on board, and the steamer Quest.

The 12 passenger Junkers plane "Upland" has been dispatched by the Swedish air ministry, Copenhagen advices said.

Major Maddelina, Italian ace, reached Copenhagen flying a big machine carrying 100 parachutes for landing crews on North East Land, near the Italia's crew.

Another Italian air expedition was to leave Pisa, Italy, today with the all-metal seaplane, Dornier-Wal.

KANSAS CITY GETTING FUN OUT OF CONVENTION

PROCESS STARTED LAST NIGHT WITH A MIGHTY ROAR

SEEK TO MAKE IT OCCASION FOR A LOT OF WHOOP-EE AND ENTHUSIASM

Kansas City, June 13.—(UP) — Having been told that a presidential nominee already was agreed upon, even before the balloting had begun, Kansas City has decided it must turn to other interests to get some real fun out of this convention—and the process started last night with a roar.

For a moment, the home fold and the visitors feared they had been cheated when it became apparent that after guaranteeing their room and board bills for five days, win, lose or draw, the vagaries of politics had assured the selection of Herbert Hoover even before the roll call started.

Then Kansas City thought a minute and decided to make the best of it—to forget that this party had been summoned to nominate a candidate for president and to turn it into a gigantic Mardi Gras wherein the elements of wine, women and song would be combed to compensate for the investment of local promoters.

The town directed itself toward forgetting that this convention possibly had been called to nominate someone for president, but in reality was simply the occasion for a lot of whoop-ee.

While local bootlegging resources were pressed to the utmost, hotel lobbies reverberated with songs for so-and-so and yells for such-and-such. Musical instruments were toted into the lobbies by persons of doubtful accomplishment but indubitable volume. Groups gathered here and there to raise cheers and suggested a college reunion more than a political convention.

Taxi drivers, speeding out from the hotels with visiting firemen of both sexes who had forgotten momentarily the purpose of their train ride to Kansas City, reported the most lively custom in suburban and indeterminate fares they ever had enjoyed.

Various questionable downtown resorts, some resembling drug stores, others bearing a franker similarity to the old institution of the brass rail and the ivory scraper, slid over the counter numerous amber-filled glasses with needle injection to crowds that grew throughout the night.

Beer, its potency a newly arrived quantity, sold from 15 cents to 25 cents a glass. Bourbon, obtained by a system of mysterious telephone calls, average $5 a pint. Gin, smelling of grain alcohol but potable if prudently diluted, was obtainable from $2 to $3 a quart. Therefore:

"What does it matter if they have agreed on Hoover; we're going to have a good time, anyway."

And they did. Nothing disorderly. Just happy and sometimes loud.

FATHER OF EIGHT CHILDREN KILLED; BURIED UNDER GRAIN

Minneapolis June 13.—(U.P.)—Joseph Radlik, 46, father of eight children, was killed when buried under several tons of ground grain feed.

Radlik fell into a chute through which the feed was flowing when he lost his balance while repairing a hopper above the chute.

His body was recovered nearly an hour after the accident as fellow workers in the plant did not immediately learn of the accident.

FATHER OF 20 CHILDREN DIES OF APOPLEXY

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 13.—(U.P.)—Ole H. Brandhagen, 70, father of 20 children, died here following an attack of apoplexy.

Five daughters and 15 sons, ranging in age from seven to 50, and his widow survive him.

Brandhagen was married twice. Nine children were born to him in his second marriage and 11 in his first.

PAST HEAD ROTARY INTERNATIONAL IN BRAINERD TODAY

A prediction that many of the visiting delegates to the convention of Rotary International at Minneapolis, June 18 to 22, will journey to the Brainerd Lake Region after the session is seen by the presence in Brainerd today of R. C. Haven, of Chicago, past president of Rotary International.

Mr. Haven made an inspection of the city and lake region today. He will return to Minneapolis this week and remain for the convention.

"FORWARD MARCH" F. & R. KEYNOTE

Sounded by Harold D. Finkelstein, General Manager of Theatre Organization

NOW AT BREEZY POINT

Brainerd Yesterday Accorded Cavalcade of 60 Automobiles an Enthusiastic Welcome

Traveling in a cavalcade of 60 automobiles, executives from all points on the Finkelstein & Ruben theatrical circuit gathered in Brainerd yesterday en route to Breezy Point for the theatremen's annual convention.

The visiting theatre men were entertained at a reception by Brainerd business men before proceeding to Pequot. More than 200 F. & R. executives and theatre managers were numbered among the visitors.

The F. & R. convention which began at Breezy Point Lodge on Big Pelican Lake last evening assumes great importance this year with full discussions of "talking pictures," the newest development in the movie business.

"Talking pictures" are a reality and the Finkelstein and Ruben executives will discuss methods of handling the newer type of entertainment which they bring.

The advent of "talking pictures" in the Northwest will find Brainerd one of the first towns to be equipped with this new invention which gives the public movies synchronized with music and voice. Brainerd will witness the introduction of many new actors and actresses which will be made necessary by this invention which demands that the players must not only be pantomimists but have speaking ability as well.

While no date can be set as yet for the introduction of Vitaphone and "talking pictures" in Brainerd, F. & R. executives said that Brainerd will be one of the first theatres outside the Twin Cities to be equipped for prseenting them.

Sounds Note of Optimism

The keynote of the 1928 convention of Finkelstein and Ruben managers and executives was sounded last night at Breezy Point by Harold D. Finkelstein, general manager with the slogan, "Forward March."

Mr. Finkelstein, who is one of the youngest film executives in America, told the assembled delegates that the slogan has been adopted as a watchword for business as well as for service to the public as well. He pointed out that 17 theatres had been added to the ever growing F. & R. circuit during the past year and called attention to the new building which the firm is building in Minneapolis to house the F. & R. executive force. He emphasized the necessity for intensified showmanship during the coming season and duty to provide for patrons the utmost in service in the theatres.

Hal Daigler, supervisor of St. Paul theatres, revealed the opportunities that exist in the theatre business for trained executives.

J. F. Cubberly, supervisor of Key City theatres, stressed the importance of appealing to the tourist trade.

William Warvelle Nelson spoke of the value of music in building up theatre programs.

The fact that but 50 per cent of the popualtion in any city attends theatres regularly was emphasized by G. Ralph Branton and Theodore L. Hays.

Wednesday morning Edmund R. Ruben will be the principal speaker. The convention closes Wednesday night with the annual banquet and will be addressed by William Hamm.

HISTORY OF RUINED FORT RECALLED IN STORY, INSPECTION

JOINT SESSION WITH LEAGUE OF MINNESOTA MUNICIPALITIES TONIGHT

POW-WOW WITH MILLE LACS INDIANS ON PROGRAM AT VINELAND TOMORROW

A fort that once protected the early settlers of this district from Indian outbreaks and from which the arm of the law ruled, now obliterated with the exception of a few relics that mark its place, was made the primary object of historical interest by the State Historical Society at the opening of the state convention today.

Fort Ripley, located on the banks of the Mississippi river looked rather reserved today in the somewhat chilly atmosphere. To the outsider the fort means little but to the historian it is a site radiating early history of the northwest.

A picnic luncheon greeted the members on their arrival at the old fort this afternoon. Judge L. B. Kinder's talk was most interesting. steamboat to ascend the upper Mis- An account of the "Virginia," first sissippi to Fort Snelling was given by William J. Peterson, of Iowa City.

Following the Fort Ripley meeting the caravan proceeded to Brainerd for the joint session this evening with the League of Minnesota Municipalities at which Professor William Anderson of the University of Minnesota will speak on "Local Government and Local History." The meeting will be conducted at the Park Theatre.

Mille Lacs, scene of exploits of Du Luth and Hennepin and of the battle between Sioux and Chippewa will be the first objective when the tour is resumed Thursday. At Vineland, Indians from the Mille Lacs band will present a program of songs, dances and games. A Chippewa wickiup, wigwam, covered with bark and native matting will be erected and birch-bark baskets and utensils will be made.

The program will include papers on the explorer, Du Luth, by William E. Cukin of Duluth and on the 'Sandy Lake Chippewa," by Irving H. Hart of Cedar Falls, Iowa.

The session at Crosby will consist of a survey of unpublished manuscript sources for the history of Central Minnesota by Mary E. Wheelhouse of the Minnesota State Historical society.

The convention will close with a joint dinner with the League of Minnesota Municipalities at Breezy Point Lodge on Big Pelican lake tomorrow evening. Bishop G. G. Bennett of Duluth is to be the principal speaker.

Judge Kinder's Talk

The story of old Fort Ripley as told by Judge L. B. Kinder, follows:

The year gold was discovered in California, Ft. Ripley was established. Abraham Lincoln was then but an obscure country lawyer riding circuit and Minnesota a wilderness save for some settlements about the lower St. Croix River and Ft. Snelling. Wisconsin, just admitted to the Union, had rejected it as worthless. Minnesota then had little but hopes and health. So healthy was it in fact, that in territorial days only two men ever died — one of whom was hanged for killing the other.

The Winnebagoes had just ceded their lands in Iowa for a tract extending along the Mississippi from about Sauk Rapids to the mouth of the Crow Wing river. In compliance with this treaty the United States sent Gen. George M. Brooke from St. Louis, to locate a fort both to protect the Winnebagoes and to stop the running warfare between the Sioux and Chippewas. In November, 1848, Gen. Brooke with staff officers and a squad of dragoons proceeded to the old trading post of Crow Wing. He located the fort on the west bank of the Mississippi just below the mouth of the Nokasippi river.

Captain Dana, afterwards a citizen of St. Paul, colonel of the First Minnesota and brigadier general, was ordered from Boston to superintend the building. Arriving as Brooke was leaving for St. Louis, he found the country white with snow. Temporary log quarters were rolled up for the workmen. A portable saw-mill was installed and the win-

Senator George Moses of New Hampshire was elected permanent chairman and made an address, looking to the coming campaign, reviewing republican progress and attacking the dmeocratic party.

The first test of strength of Hoover strength came in a test vote on adoption of a minority report from the credentials committee which would have seated 18 delegates from Texas, all opponents of Hoover. The report was defeated 676½ to 395½ and the majority report favorable to Hoover adopted.

A farm contingent attempted to gain entrance to the assembly hall to make a demonstration but was denied admittance.

The platform committee still argued on the farm plank, deferring presentation of the report at least until the night session.

Talk of vice-presidential candidates occupied great attention, with a dozen candidates mentioned, and none decidedly in the lead.

Among the agricultural mal-contents there was some talk of a third party. It was not impressive.

Convention Hall, Kansas City, June 13.—The Republican national convention, which yesterday began as a cut and dried event, all set to glide over a greased path to a quick finish, was caught in a tangle of the stubborn farm relief issue today.

The platform sub-committee, after meeting all night, was so widely split over farm relief that it was not expected to complete its work until late today and perhaps not until tomorrow.

The convention proper, therefore, dozed through a dreary routine session. Senator George H. Moses, slated for permanent chairman, sat patiently for hours on the platform while a hot speech to the convention which was designed to jerk the delegates upon their chairs grew cold in his coat pocket. The delay was caused by the failure of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, chairman of the credentials committee, to get to the hall promptly when the convention met today. After a long wait she finally arrived and started reading to the convention the names of the 1,100 delegates recommended for permanent seats in the convention.

Outside a contingent of farmers headed by a band in overalls and hay-seed hats, marched to convention hall and demanded admission "as American citizens and good republicans."

The convention sergeant-at-arms refused to permit them to enter without spectators' tickets. The farmers marched around the outside of the hall several times but the convention inside did not know what had taken place.

The delay in today's proceedings may cause a night session tonight. If the platform committee appears to be delayed much longer, the convention may change the order of business and start placing candidates in nomination late today to save time.

Herbert Hoover won the contested Texas delegation on a show down in the convention early this afternoon. The convention voted down a minority report which would have taken from him delegates awarded by the credentials committee. This was the first test of strength and Hoover came out a victor.

PADLOCK ACTION FOR VOLSTEAD LAW VIOLATIONS

St. Paul, June 13.—(U.P.)—Padlock proceedings were instituted in United States district court here against numerous Minnesota business houses and residents accused by United States Assistant Attorney J. H. S. Gifford of Volstead law violations.

The Jefferson Inn, situated on the Jefferson highway, south of St. Paul was named by Gifford as one of the places upon which the prohibition laws had been violated.

Most of the places named by Gifford were in the Twin Cities.

NOBILE AND 5 COMRADES DRIFT TO LAND GOAL

REPORTED TO BE WITHIN SIGHT OF COAST OF NORTH EAST LAND

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 13.—Drifting slowly on a great ice bed, their one tent painted red as a signal to any searchers, General Umberto Nobile and five comrades today were within sight of the coast of North East Land.

They are suffering severely. Their hands are frostbitten. Their food supply is limited and is being rationed carefully. Only the single silk tent serves to protect them from the rigors of the northern climate.

Ten of their comrades are scattered on other ice floes, one group of seven and one group of three that started walking east. Nobile has heard nothing of them.

Nobile's radio was silent throughout last night and at 9:10 A. M. toway communication had not been restored.

It was feared that the radio accumulators of the portable wireless set, erected by the lost dirigible Italia's crew, had become exhausted as communication had been frequent since last week-end.

There was some hope, however, that Nobile had severed communication voluntarily for a time to conserve power.

The great dirigible Italai, in which 16 men toured over the north pole on an epochal and disastrous flight that started May 23, is a loss. A gondola was ripped off in a sudden descent, separating Nobile and eight of his companions from other members of the party.

The other seven men floated with the great bag and are lost in the great waste area north of North East Land.

But relief rapidly is approaching. The motor schooner Svalbard, equipped with gasoline and provisions, has started from Green Harbour. The steamer Braganza advised Kings Bay it had been successful in breaking free from the ice pack and was returning at full setam to Kings Bay. It will take on gasoline and relief supplies here and immediately steam towards where Nobile and his aides are floating, helpless to aid themselves.

Luetzow-Holm, who was forced down on Mossel Bay because of a fuel shortage, returned to the Hobby late yesterday after gasoline had been carried to him. He reported he had sighted none of the lost explorers in his flight that was over Brandy Bay, New Frier Island and Mossel Bay.

From many points additional rescue expeditions were underway and pressing to the aid of the stranded crew of the Italia.

Two Swedish expeditions left Tromsoe for King's Bay last night. They were the steamer Panja, with three planes on board, and the steamer Quest.

The 12 passenger Junkers plane "Upland" has been dispatched by the Swedish air ministry, Copenhagen advices said.

Major Maddelina, Italian ace, reached Copenhagen flying a big machine carrying 100 parachutes for landing crews on North East Land, near the Italia's crew.

Another Italian air expedition was to leave Pisa, Italy, today with the all-metal seaplane, Dornier-Wal.

KANSAS CITY GETTING FUN OUT OF CONVENTION

PROCESS STARTED LAST NIGHT WITH A MIGHTY ROAR

SEEK TO MAKE IT OCCASION FOR A LOT OF WHOOP-EE AND ENTHUSIASM

Kansas City, June 13.—(UP) — Having been told that a presidential nominee already was agreed upon, even before the balloting had begun, Kansas City has decided it must turn to other interests to get some real fun out of this convention—and the process started last night with a roar.

For a moment, the home fold and the visitors feared they had been cheated when it became apparent that after guaranteeing their room and board bills for five days, win, lose or draw, the vagaries of politics had assured the selection of Herbert Hoover even before the roll call started.

Then Kansas City thought a minute and decided to make the best of it—to forget that this party had been summoned to nominate a candidate for president and to turn it into a gigantic Mardi Gras wherein the elements of wine, women and song would be combed to compensate for the investment of local promoters.

The town directed itself toward forgetting that this convention possibly had been called to nominate someone for president, but in reality was simply the occasion for a lot of whoop-ee.

While local bootlegging resources were pressed to the utmost, hotel lobbies reverberated with songs for so-and-so and yells for such-and-such. Musical instruments were toted into the lobbies by persons of doubtful accomplishment but indubitable volume. Groups gathered here and there to raise cheers and suggested a college reunion more than a political convention.

Taxi drivers, speeding out from the hotels with visiting firemen of both sexes who had forgotten momentarily the purpose of their train ride to Kansas City, reported the most lively custom in suburban and indeterminate fares they ever had enjoyed.

Various questionable downtown resorts, some resembling drug stores, others bearing a franker similarity to the old institution of the brass rail and the ivory scraper, slid over the counter numerous amber-filled glasses with needle injection to crowds that grew throughout the night.

Beer, its potency a newly arrived quantity, sold from 15 cents to 25 cents a glass. Bourbon, obtained by a system of mysterious telephone calls, average $5 a pint. Gin, smelling of grain alcohol but potable if prudently diluted, was obtainable from $2 to $3 a quart. Therefore:

"What does it matter if they have agreed on Hoover; we're going to have a good time, anyway."

And they did. Nothing disorderly. Just happy and sometimes loud.

FATHER OF EIGHT CHILDREN KILLED; BURIED UNDER GRAIN

Minneapolis June 13.—(U.P.)—Joseph Radilk, 46, father of eight children, was killed when buried under several tons of ground grain feed.

Radilk fell into a chute through which the feed was flowing when he lost his balance while repairing a hopper above the chute.

His body was recovered nearly an hour after the accident as fellow workers in the plant did not immediately learn of the accident.

FATHER OF 20 CHILDREN DIES OF APOPLEXY

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 13.—(U.P.)—Ole H. Brandhagen, 70, father of 20 children, died here following an attack of apoplexy.

Five daughters and 15 sons, ranging in age from seven to 50, and his widow survive him.

Brandhagen was married twice. Nine children were born to him in his second marriage and 11 in his first.

PAST HEAD ROTARY INTERNATIONAL IN BRAINERD TODAY

A prediction that many of the visiting delegates to the convention of Rotary International at Minneapolis, June 18 to 22, will journey to the Brainerd Lake Region after the session is seen by the presence in Brainerd today of R. C. Haven, of Chicago, past president of Rotary International.

Mr. Haven made an inspection of the city and lake region today. He will return to Minneapolis this week and remain for the convention.

"FORWARD MARCH" F. & R. KEYNOTE

Sounded by Harold D. Finkelstein, General Manager of Theatre Organization

NOW AT BREEZY POINT

Brainerd Yesterday Accorded Cavalcade of 60 Automobiles an Enthusiastic Welcome

Traveling in a cavalcade of 60 automobiles, executives from all points on the Finkelstein & Ruben theatrical circuit gathered in Brainerd yesterday en route to Breezy Point for the theatremen's annual convention.

The visiting theatre men were entertained at a reception by Brainerd business men before proceeding to Pequot. More than 200 F. & R. executives and theatre managers were numbered among the visitors.

The F. & R. convention which began at Breezy Point Lodge on Big Pelican Lake last evening assumes great importance this year with full discussions of "talking pictures," the newest development in the movie business.

"Talking pictures" are a reality and the Finkelstein and Ruben executives will discuss methods of handling the newer type of entertainment which they bring.

The advent of "talking pictures" in the Northwest will find Brainerd one of the first towns to be equipped with this new invention which gives the public movies synchronized with music and voice. Brainerd will witness the introduction of many new actors and actresses which will be made necessary by this invention which demands that the players must not only be pantomimists but have speaking ability as well.

While no date can be set as yet for the introduction of Vitaphone and "talking pictures" in Brainerd, F. & R. executives said that Brainerd will be one of the first theatres outside the Twin Cities to be equipped for prseenting them.

Sounds Note of Optimism

The keynote of the 1928 convention of Finkelstein and Ruben managers and executives was sounded last night at Breezy Point by Harold D. Finkelstein, general manager with the slogan, "Forward March."

Mr. Finkelstein, who is one of the youngest film executives in America, told the assembled delegates that the slogan has been adopted as a watchword for business as well as for service to the public as well. He pointed out that 17 theatres had been added to the ever growing F. & R. circuit during the past year and called attention to the new building which the firm is building in Minneapolis to house the F. & R. executive force. He emphasized the necessity for intensified showmanship during the coming season and duty to provide for patrons the utmost in service in the theatres.

Hal Daigler, supervisor of St. Paul theatres, revealed the opportunities that exist in the theatre business for trained executives.

J. F. Cubberly, supervisor of Key City theatres, stressed the importance of appealing to the tourist trade.

William Warvelle Nelson spoke of the value of music in building up theatre programs.

The fact that but 50 per cent of the popualtion in any city attends theatres regularly was emphasized by G. Ralph Branton and Theodore L. Hays.

Wednesday morning Edmund R. Ruben will be the principal speaker. The convention closes Wednesday night with the annual banquet and will be addressed by William Hamm.

HISTORY OF RUINED FORT RECALLED IN STORY, INSPECTION

JOINT SESSION WITH LEAGUE OF MINNESOTA MUNICIPALITIES TONIGHT

POW-WOW WITH MILLE LACS INDIANS ON PROGRAM AT VINELAND TOMORROW

A fort that once protected the early settlers of this district from Indian outbreaks and from which the arm of the law ruled, now obliterated with the exception of a few relics that mark its place, was made the primary object of historical interest by the State Historical Society at the opening of the state convention today.

Fort Ripley, located on the banks of the Mississippi river looked rather reserved today in the somewhat chilly atmosphere. To the outsider the fort means little but to the historian it is a site radiating early history of the northwest.

A picnic luncheon greeted the members on their arrival at the old fort this afternoon. Judge L. B. Kinder's talk was most interesting. steamboat to ascend the upper Mis- An account of the "Virginia," first sissippi to Fort Snelling was given by William J. Peterson, of Iowa City.

Following the Fort Ripley meeting the caravan proceeded to Brainerd for the joint session this evening with the League of Minnesota Municipalities at which Professor William Anderson of the University of Minnesota will speak on "Local Government and Local History." The meeting will be conducted at the Park Theatre.

Mille Lacs, scene of exploits of Du Luth and Hennepin and of the battle between Sioux and Chippewa will be the first objective when the tour is resumed Thursday. At Vineland, Indians from the Mille Lacs band will present a program of songs, dances and games. A Chippewa wickiup, wigwam, covered with bark and native matting will be erected and birch-bark baskets and utensils will be made.

The program will include papers on the explorer, Du Luth, by William E. Cukin of Duluth and on the 'Sandy Lake Chippewa," by Irving H. Hart of Cedar Falls, Iowa.

The session at Crosby will consist of a survey of unpublished manuscript sources for the history of Central Minnesota by Mary E. Wheelhouse of the Minnesota State Historical society.

The convention will close with a joint dinner with the League of Minnesota Municipalities at Breezy Point Lodge on Big Pelican lake tomorrow evening. Bishop G. G. Bennett of Duluth is to be the principal speaker.

Judge Kinder's Talk

The story of old Fort Ripley as told by Judge L. B. Kinder, follows:

The year gold was discovered in California, Ft. Ripley was established. Abraham Lincoln was then but an obscure country lawyer riding circuit and Minnesota a wilderness save for some settlements about the lower St. Croix River and Ft. Snelling. Wisconsin, just admitted to the Union, had rejected it as worthless. Minnesota then had little but hopes and health. So healthy was it in fact, that in territorial days only two men ever died — one of whom was hanged for killing the other.

The Winnebagoes had just ceded their lands in Iowa for a tract extending along the Mississippi from about Sauk Rapids to the mouth of the Crow Wing river. In compliance with this treaty the United States sent Gen. George M. Brooke from St. Louis, to locate a fort both to protect the Winnebagoes and to stop the running warfare between the Sioux and Chippewas. In November, 1848, Gen. Brooke with staff officers and a squad of dragoons proceeded to the old trading post of Crow Wing. He located the fort on the west bank of the Mississippi just below the mouth of the Nokasippi river.

Captain Dana, afterwards a citizen of St. Paul, colonel of the First Minnesota and brigadier general, was ordered from Boston to superintend the building. Arriving as Brooke was leaving for St. Louis, he found the country white with snow. Temporary log quarters were rolled up for the workmen. A portable saw-mill was installed and the win-

Brainerd is Fortunate to Get Return Engagement After Two and a Half Years

The Scandinavian Bell Ringers from Europe again return to Brainerd for a concert in the First M. E. church under the auspices of the Men's Birthday club of the Swedish Bethany church. Tickets are now on sale at John Carlson & Son, John M. Bye Clothing Co., Skauge Drug store and by members of the club.

These internationally known carillon players have just returned from a very successful concert tour of Europe, and will again give to the music lovers of Brainerd and surrounding towns one of their unique Bell concerts.

The Carillon players do not strike their 189 to 200 bells to produce the notes, but by grasping leather thongs attached to the bells, and with delicate skill jerk them in rapid succession, they send forth sweet music in perfect harmony; of jangling there is none, neither is there any clamorous jarring, nor echo, to mar the even flow of the production.

The range of their achievement covers the whole gamut of instrumental musical accomplishment, embracing a wide repertoire which includes the most glorious symphonies, as well as the sweet folk music of the romantic Kingdoms of the North Sea. The program follows:

1. The Scandinavian Bell Ringers.
   (a) Entree March ..... Clementz
   (b) Benuet ..... Boccherino
   (c) Evening Chimes ..... Marzion

AUSPICES OF BETHANY CHURCH

Brainerd is Fortunate to Get Return Engagement After Two and a Half Years

The Scandinavian Bell Ringers from Europe again return to Brainerd for a concert in the First M. E. church under the auspices of the Men's Birthday club of the Swedish Bethany church. Tickets are now on sale at John Carlson & Son, John M. Bye Clothing Co., Skauge Drug store and by members of the club.

These internationally known carillon players have just returned from a very successful concert tour of Europe, and will again give to the music lovers of Brainerd and surrounding towns one of their unique Bell concerts.

The Carillon players do not strike their 189 to 200 bells to produce the notes, but by grasping leather thongs attached to the bells, and with delicate skill jerk them in rapid succession, they send forth sweet music in perfect harmony; of jangling there is none, neither is there any clamorous jarring, nor echo, to mar the even flow of the production.

The range of their achievement covers the whole gamut of instrumental musical accomplishment, embracing a wide repertoire which includes the most glorious symphonies, as well as the sweet folk music of the romantic Kingdoms of the North Sea. The program follows:

1. The Scandinavian Bell Ringers.
   (a) Entree March ..... Clementz
   (b) Benuet ..... Boccherino
   (c) Evening Chimes ..... Marzion
2. Miss Mildred Bredenberg.

You will notice that the General Electric Refrigerators are unusually roomy. The model illustrated—designed for an average family—has twelve square feet of shelf area. This means that you have a shelf a foot wide and twelve feet long to store your food. In no other refrigerator can you get such great shelf area for the same over-all size.

The General Electric Refrigerator has no belts, fans or drain-pipes. It is unusually quiet. It never needs oiling. And it is made and guaranteed by General Electric.

The mechanical perfection of the design and the extra food storage area make the General Electric a remarkable value. We would like you to come in and study the wide range of models. Time payments can be arranged, if you prefer. Come in today.

FLAG DAY, JUNE 14

OBSERVANCE of Flag Day, June 14, is asked in a proclamation by Governor Theodore Christianson.

Flags will be flown from civic and business places throughout the state in celebration of the birthday of the national colors and the Elks at Brainerd will have a Flag Day program at Elks Temple tomorrow evening conforming to the ritual of the Elks lodge. Attorney General G. A. Youngquist will deliver the patriotic address.

The Governor's proclamation follows:

"On June 14, 1777, Congress adopted the Stars and Stripes as the official flag of the United States of America. Beneath this banner thousands of patriots have since marched in sanction and support of American ideals.

"I earnestly request that the flag of our country be displayed from public buildings, places of business and homes; that school children wherever schools are in session, be instructed not only in the approved ways of displaying the flag and showing proper respect therefor, but in the ideals of liberty and principles of government which it exemplifies.

"That the people generally give thought to commemoration and observance of the anniversary and to dedicate themselves anew to the ideals, traditions and institutions for which it stands."

ST. PAUL OFFICIALS AT BRAINERD

ter spent in getting out logs and sawing lumber. The fort consisted of some sixteen frame buildings forming three sides of a square whose opening faced the Mississippi. The barracks occupied the rear and part of the south side of the quadrangle. On the south side were also officers' quarters, chapel and hospital. On the north were officers' quarters and the settlers' store. The buildings stood about fifteen feet apart. Along the east side was a log stockade; the northwest and southwest corners were flanked with log block-houses with port-holes. For two years Gen. Dana superintended the construction. The builder was Jesse H. Pomroy of St. Paul who two years later erected Ft. Ridgely. On May 13th, 1849, the first garrison Co. A. 6th Infantry arrived from Ft. Snelling. The commander, Captain John B. S. Todd (after whom Todd county was named) christened the new post "Fort Gaines," an important fortification on Mobile Bay being soon after named for General Gaines. In 1850 the name was changed to Ft. Ripley in honor of Gen. Eleazer W. Ripley, a Portland, Maine lawyer, who distinguished himself in the war of 1812 and later served in Congress.

Ft. Ripley was the hub of a world of wilderness. Its location on the west side of the river (to place it in Winnebago reservation) proved most inconvenient. To reach it from the military road from Ft. Snelling to Crow Wing, a ferry with 800 foot cable had to be installed. About the fort was a military reservation one mile square; across the river was a large reservation to keep whiskey-sellers at their distance. Here, opposite the Fort was the government farm where Baldwin Olmstead raised supplies for the soldiers. Sixteen miles to the south was the beginning of Little Falls and some thirty miles west the Long Prairie agency of the Winnebagoes. Seven miles to the north opposite the mouth of the Crow Wing river, the whiskey soaked village of Crow Wing marked the end of the government wagon road. A mile above dwelt the troublesome Chief, Hole in the Day. Three miles up the Crow Wing river, where Gull river enters, was the Chippewa Indian Agency. Eleven miles beyond, on the east shore of Gull Lake was St. Colombo Mission established by the apostle of this wilderness, James Lloyd Breck.

Fort Ripley's first eight years were singularly uneventful. Thanks to the diary of its first chaplain, Rev. Solon W. Manney, we have a day by day chronicle of this period. The only killings recorded were those of the tomatoes by Jack Frost. The only cannons fired were 4th of July salutes. Once an Indian was arrested and put in irons for shooting the missionary's cow. Otherwise the only military duties were to attend the Long Prairie and Crow Wing Indian agencies at time of the annual payments. The soldiers' chief perils were bad whiskey, freezing to death or walking into airholes while drunk, and the ferry; cakes of ice or logs would drive it downstream. One April while six men and two yoke of oxen were crossing, it upset. Two of the soldiers swam ashore with the oxen, one rescued himself and two were picked up by a canoe. The sixth, though a good swimmer, was caught in the current and weighted down by boots and heavy clothes, sank in view of the garrison. The young fort also witnessed marriages, christenings and dances. Within its walls Chaplain Manney smacked his lips over Fourth of July dinners of wild duck and green peas and framed the canons which governed the Episcopal church in Minnesota for forty years.

The protection Ft. Ripley was giving northern Minnesota was quickly demonstrated when in June, 1857, the garrison was removed. The Leech Lake Indians destroyed mission property and drove out the missionaries. Near Gull Lake three Indians murdered a German peddler. They were captured and brought to the Fort. There being no garrison, Rev. Manney had Government Farmer Olmstead hitch up his wagon and take them before the Justice of Belle Prairie Township who committed them to Sheriff Pugh of Little Falls. On the way to St. Paul a posse of whites from Swan River overtook them. Intimidating the sheriff by

FOR ANY SIZE HOME

NOW the Holland Vaporaire Deluxe for fine homes offers all advantages of large heating-cooling systems used in modern theaters, hospitals and schools. A simple, compact plant of reasonable price and low operating cost constantly circulates clean, filtered air—warm or cool, depending on the season—through every room, changing the atmosphere of the whole house many times an hour. Heating response is immediate. The electric Super-Sirculator forces warmth in measured volumes to every part of the home and eliminates forced firing even in severe weather. Thermostatically controlled temperature need never vary more than two degrees. The saving in fuel helps pay for the system. Two firings daily—three minutes morning and night—is all of the attention required.

Proper humidity, maintained automatically, eliminates the chief cause of colds. Air is kept on the march. It teems with life and energy. Floors are warm and draft-free all winter. Summer heat holds no terror. Filtered air is forced by the Super-Sirculator to all parts of the house. The cooling effect is equivalent to an electric fan in every room. The system, built to last a lifetime, may be installed in any size home, new or old. It is tried, proved and guaranteed by written bond. Every installation is made under factory supervision to meet the individual needs of the home it serves. Purchase may be made by deferred payments. ALL YEAR ROUND NOW

FOR ANY SIZE HOME

NOW the Holland Vaporaire Deluxe for fine homes offers all advantages of large heating-cooling systems used in modern theaters, hospitals and schools. A simple, compact plant of reasonable price and low operating cost constantly circulates clean, filtered air—warm or cool, depending on the season—through every room, changing the atmosphere of the whole house many times an hour. Heating response is immediate. The electric Super-Sirculator forces warmth in measured volumes to every part of the home and eliminates forced firing even in severe weather. Thermostatically controlled temperature need never vary more than two degrees. The saving in fuel helps pay for the system. Two firings daily—three minutes morning and night—is all of the attention required. Proper humidity, maintained automatically, eliminates the chief cause of colds. Air is kept on the march. It teems with life and energy. Floors are warm and draft-free all winter. Summer heat holds no terror. Filtered air is forced by the Super-Sirculator to all parts of the house. The cooling effect is equivalent to an electric fan in every room. The system, built to last a lifetime, may be installed in any size home, new or old. It is tried, proved and guaranteed by written bond. Every installation is made under factory supervision to meet the individual needs of the home it serves. Purchase may be made by deferred payments. Before you buy a new heating plant or repair your present one—get the facts about Holland Vaporaire Deluxe. Use the attached coupon or phone our nearest branch.

HARD HITTING ABERDEEN POLE 8 TO 5 FAVORITE

SCRANTON FIGHTER BENT ON RISING TO TOP IN HIS DIVISION

JUST TWO WEEKS AGO HE GAVE LOUGHRAN A STIFF FIGHT

New York, June 13.—(UP)—Pete Latzo, Scranton, Pa., former welterweight champion, is bent on rising to the top of the light-heavyweight division.

Less than two weeks after he gave Tommy Loughran, the 175-pound title-holder, one of the stiffest fights of the latter's career, Latzo will go back into the same ring at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tonight to swap socks with Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., the outstanding challenger.

Lomski and Loughran were signed for tonight's main bout, but the meeting was postponed when the New York state athletic commission ruled that Loughran must go through with his bout against Jimmy Slattery first. Latzo readily agreed to substitute for Loughran.

The hard-hitting Aberdeen Pole is an 8 to 5 favorite to win. The match is scheduled for ten rounds.

"72" the greatest fact in motor cars today

From low price to high, all engineering today takes its cue from Chrysler—yet what are the facts?

Run the gamut of cars, from low to high, which seek to emulate Chrysler—and still the Illustrious Chrysler "72" runs easily away from them all with all the honors of flashing, efficient performance!

There is no escaping this plain fact—that as motor car manufacturing exists today, anyone who pays as much as, or up to a thousand dollars more than the price of Chrysler "72," for another car unmistakably gets less. That is the one great important fact in motor car buying today.

HARD HITTING ABERDEEN POLE 8 TO 5 FAVORITE

SCRANTON FIGHTER BENT ON RISING TO TOP IN HIS DIVISION

JUST TWO WEEKS AGO HE GAVE LOUGHRAN A STIFF FIGHT

New York, June 13.—(UP)—Pete Latzo, Scranton, Pa., former welterweight champion, is bent on rising to the top of the light-heavyweight division.

Less than two weeks after he gave Tommy Loughran, the 175-pound title-holder, one of the stiffest fights of the latter's career, Latzo will go back into the same ring at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tonight to swap socks with Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., the outstanding challenger.

Lomski and Loughran were signed for tonight's main bout, but the meeting was postponed when the New York state athletic commission ruled that Loughran must go through with his bout against Jimmy Slattery first. Latzo readily agreed to substitute for Loughran.

The hard-hitting Aberdeen Pole is an 8 to 5 favorite to win. The match is scheduled for ten rounds.

"72" the greatest fact in motor cars today

From low price to high, all engineering today takes its cue from Chrysler—yet what are the facts?

Run the gamut of cars, from low to high, which seek to emulate Chrysler—and still the Illustrious Chrysler "72" runs easily away from them all with all the honors of flashing, efficient performance!

However much they seek to act like Chrysler "72"—to ride and drive and accelerate and glide like Chrysler "72"—the Illustrious "72" continues to leave them all in the rear in brilliant behavior.

There is no escaping this plain fact—that as motor car manufacturing exists today, anyone who pays as much as, or up to a thousand dollars more than the price of Chrysler "72," for another car unmistakably gets less. That is the one great important fact in motor car buying today.

New Location Opens Door for Inspection Afternoon and Evening; Sales Start Saturday

Acclaimed One of Finest Woolworth Stores in State; Modern in Every Way

Without question one of the finest stores in the city, located in the heart of the Brainerd business district and embodying everything modern in construction and arrangement, the F. W. Woolworth Co. continued today their extensive preparations for the formal opening and inspection of their new quarters in the Iron Exchange building, South Sixth street, Friday afternoon and evening, June 15.

"In order to give the people of Brainerd and community an opportunity to inspect our store laid out with extensive lines of merchandise we will be open Friday afternoon and evening. No merchandise will be sold on that day," said M. L. Condran, district superintendent, in charge of preparations and official opening of the new store.

The store will be open for sale of merchandise starting Saturday morning at 8 o'clock. An entertainment feature of the opening Friday will be music by an orchestra.

The new store has double the space of the former one on Front street which will close this evening to permit final removal of merchandise. A new feature of the store is an up to date soft drink department as well as a new dust proof candy case.

"The plant is positively the most up to date store I have ever laid out for the Woolworth Co. pertaining to room and fixtures," stated Mr. Condran. "In remodelling no expense has been spared to make it the finest Woolworth store, size considered, in the state of Minnesota."

The store has a frontage of 48 feet with a depth of 80 feet and a modern basement where all reserve stock is maintained. In the rear are modern rest rooms for the 55 employees.

The Woolworth Company has been in operation in Brainerd for the past 16 years. Increased business has necessitated the moving into larger quarters. I. S. Harger is the local manager. The company has a lease on the new quarters for 25 years.

HISTORICAL MEET AT FT. RIPLEY

putting a rope around a deputy's neck, they seized the Indians and took them back to the prairie south of Little Falls. There, confessing their crime, they were hanged upon a pole between two trees and buried still handcuffed together.

This as might be expected excited the Indians. Rev. Paek and his family were compelled to flee from Gull Lake Mission and take refuge in Ft. Ripley. Late in August the village of Crow Wing was thrown into panic by the discovery that Hole in the Day was plotting revenge. A friendly chief, Crow Feather, informed Clement Beaulieu that he and other braves had been ordered to proceed to Crow Wing, kill the first white man he saw there and then go to Gull Lake and burn the mission buildings. Thanks to Beaulieu's influence this deviltry was abandoned but the danger of an Indian uprising still remained and appeals were sent to Fort Snelling. Troops were at once sent. Quiet was restored by their mere presence.

Indeed, the first duty of the new garrison was to suppress some drunken roughs, "half hoss and half alligator," who the following March raised hell in that backwoods Sodom, Crow Wing. These, under leadership of "Whiskey Jack," at 2 A. M. broke into McArthur's store and put shavings under Beaulieu's store and set fire to it. Shooting off revolvers, they threatened to kill any who tried to put the fire out. The store-keepers and their friends shot back, wounding Whiskey Jack in the neck and killing one of the ruffians.

To add to the excitement at the Fort, a cake of floating ice hit the ferry boat and carried it off five miles down river. At retreat the next evening, Beaulieu's son yelled from the east shore news that the roughs were coming back in force that night to burn the village. Two days later came an appeal from the Gull River agency for troops to protect it from these same scoundrels. Lieutenant Spencer, who had been sent with troops to Crow Wing, returned the next day with Whiskey Jack and another rough. These were arraigned at Farmer Olmstead's house across the river before Justice McGillis, who being unable to write well had the army surgeon assist him. Beaulieu was the complaining witness, Chaplain Manney acted as prosecutor and Lieut. Spencer as counsel for the defendant. Whiskey Jack was bound over and being unable to furnish bail was turned over to the constable, who lacking a jail, lodged him in the Fort guardhouse.

Meanwhile the arrival of a Chippewa squaw under military escort from Ft. Snelling created a serious situation. Captured by the Sioux in December, she had escaped to Ft. Ridgely, whose commander had forwarded her to Ft. Snelling. The day after she reached Ft. Ripley, Sheriff Pugh brought news of a Sioux war party of 200 warriors looking for her. Major Patten, Ft. Ripley's commander ,ordered the troops back from Crow Wing, sent out scouts and issued a thousand ball cartridges to the citizens of Little Falls. The Chippewas hurried in from their sugar bushes and the lumbermen flocked in to Crow Wing. The following May Chaplain Manney was interrupted while planting his garden by by the bugle sounding an alarm. A second and larger Sioux war party had appeared. The block-houses were made ready. News came that a second Sioux party had taken seven Chippewa scalps near Swan River and that a third were robbing folk upon the Platte River. But thanks to the fort no depredations were committed in this vicinity.

Shortly after this scare Major Patten and half the garrison—there was then a company each of artillery and of infantry—was sent to the Red River to built Ft. Abercrombie. During the Civil War the regulars were withdrawn and companies from various Minnesota regiments detailed there. So frequent these changes that in the 26 years of its existence, Fort Ripley had over 60 commandants.

On the day of the Sioux outbreak in Southern Minnesota, Lucius C. Walker, Chippewa agent, learned that Indians were gathering to attack the Gull River agency. He at once sent a messenger for help to Ft. Ripley, then garrisoned by thirty men of the Fifth Minnesota Infantry. The next morning he, himself, fled. At Crow Wing, encountering twenty soldiers on their way to protect the agency, he ordered them to arrest Hole-in-the-Day; the chief, throwing off his blanket, fled. The squad chased him to his frame house, from where he escaped in a canoe, paddling safely across the river under a fusilade of shots. Warnings were received from the Indian missionary at Gull Lake and rumors spread that the Indians were about to burn Crow Wing and massacre all its inhabitants. The commandant of Ft. Ripley proclaimed martial law and called upon all the settlers to take refuge at the fort. This was already filled with the families of the garrison who were expecting to leave soon to the Civil War. The fears and confusion of the night that followed are vividly painted by one of the women refugees. Ordnance Sergeant Frantzkey could find ammunition for the cannon but none for the rifles. All night by candlebeams bullets were molded and cartridges made, while the block-houses were prepared for a siege. In the wee small hours the refugees were thrown into panic by musket shots. The long roll was beaten by the drummers, at which signal the women and children flocked into the block-houses. But the cause was only an empty canoe some soldiers had fired at. In the morning trenches were dug and outside buildings were burned. At midnight the occupants were cheered by the creaking of army wagons bringing a reinforcement of 80 men.

Meanwhile Agent Walker, still running, encountered his superior, Indian Commissioner Dole at St. Cloud bound for the Red River country. But Walker was too upset to explain the situation. His mind, indeed, was fast giving way; near Monticello he blew out his brains. Dole, abandoning his Red River trip, hastened back to St. Paul, whence at his request Governor Ramsey sent two more companies to the relief of Fort Ripley. About a week later Dole followed, under heavy escort. Upon reaching the Fort, he dispatched a runner summoning Hole-in-the-Day to council.

Hole-in-the-Day has been lauded as the peer of Fennimore Cooper's noblest redmen. In the present instance, however, he displayed only insolence and greed. He ignored the commissioner's messenger. Day after day messengers were sent. Finally on the tenth he moved his camp from Gull Lake to between the agency and Crow Wing and in feathered state appeared, not at the fort, but at the village with an impressive retinue of warriors in war paint. The commissioner, who went there to meet him, found the road and council ground surrounded by 200 warriors. Hole-in-the-Day showed only insolence. On the morrow he did not deign to return. Thereupon Commissioner Dole departed for St. Paul, leaving matters in the hands of Special Agent Merrill, whom he instructed not to issue any further supplies to the Indians.

This order had the effect desired. At a stormy council of the chiefs that night Hole-in-the-Day vainly urged them to plunder the agency. The others feared the three companies of infantry at the fort. In the morning they asked the agent for a new council. At this they agreed to deliver up their plunder and return to the agency. This ended the disturbance.

The long delay in effecting these negotiations threw Southern Minnesota into a panic. Rumors were spread that Hole-in-the-Day was acting in conjunction with the Sioux chief, Little Crow, in an attempt to drive the whites out of Minnesota. Governor Ramsey sent a commission to investigate. Volunteer companies were raised along the border. There is evidence that the influence of the missionaries kept many Chippewas peaceful. In fact only the Leech Lake Pillagers and Gull Lake bands joined in the disturbance, but though Hole-in-the-Day had only 500 warriors, it is certain that had a Chippewa insurrection broken out, the whole nation would have been involved. Thanks to Forty Ripley, Central Minnesota was spared a duplication of the Minnesota valley massacres.

After the Civil War, Fort Ripley was again garrisoned by the regulars. The year of 1868 was marked by the burning of Sergt. Frantzkey's quarters. The sergeant and his four children perished; his wife who escaped was crazed by the flames. Nine years later fire destroyed the officers' quarters, laundries and storehouse. There being no further need for a fort here, it was abandoned, the garrison leaving in July, 1878. The 52 bodies in the Fort cemetery were removed to the National Cemetery at Rock Island, Illinois, and in 1880 the Fort and Reservation sold.

That the annals of Ft. Ripley are not more bloody evidences the efficacy with which it protected this section of our state. The swords of its soldiers have long ago been sheathed or beaten into plowshares. The windows and boards of its buildings have been turned into claim cabins; the stones of its foundations used in the bridge you cross. Like the pioneers it knew, it is gone. But its memory is still cherished. The Crow Wing County Historical Society hopes some day to acquire its site for a Memorial Park.

putting a rope around a deputy's neck, they seized the Indians and took them back to the prairie south of Little Falls. There, confessing their crime, they were hanged upon a pole between two trees and buried still handcuffed together.

This as might be expected excited the Indians. Rev. Paek and his family were compelled to flee from Gull Lake Mission and take refuge in Ft. Ripley. Late in August the village of Crow Wing was thrown into panic by the discovery that Hole in the Day was plotting revenge. A friendly chief, Crow Feather, informed Clement Beaulieu that he and other braves had been ordered to proceed to Crow Wing, kill the first white man he saw there and then go to Gull Lake and burn the mission buildings. Thanks to Beaulieu's influence this deviltry was abandoned but the danger of an Indian uprising still remained and appeals were sent to Fort Snelling. Troops were at once sent. Quiet was restored by their mere presence.

Indeed, the first duty of the new garrison was to suppress some drunken roughs, "half hoss and half alligator," who the following March raised hell in that backwoods Sodom, Crow Wing. These, under leadership of "Whiskey Jack," at 2 A. M. broke into McArthur's store and put shavings under Beaulieu's store and set fire to it. Shooting off revolvers, they threatened to kill any who tried to put the fire out. The store-keepers and their friends shot back, wounding Whiskey Jack in the neck and killing one of the ruffians.

To add to the excitement at the Fort, a cake of floating ice hit the ferry boat and carried it off five miles down river. At retreat the next evening, Beaulieu's son yelled from the east shore news that the roughs were coming back in force that night to burn the village. Two days later came an appeal from the Gull River agency for troops to protect it from these same scoundrels. Lieutenant Spencer, who had been sent with troops to Crow Wing, returned the next day with Whiskey Jack and another rough. These were arraigned at Farmer Olmstead's house across the river before Justice McGillis, who being unable to write well had the army surgeon assist him. Beaulieu was the complaining witness, Chaplain Manney acted as prosecutor and Lieut. Spencer as counsel for the defendant. Whiskey Jack was bound over and being unable to furnish bail was turned over to the constable, who lacking a jail, lodged him in the Fort guardhouse.

Meanwhile the arrival of a Chippewa squaw under military escort from Ft. Snelling created a serious situation. Captured by the Sioux in December, she had escaped to Ft. Ridgely, whose commander had forwarded her to Ft. Snelling. The day after she reached Ft. Ripley, Sheriff Pugh brought news of a Sioux war party of 200 warriors looking for her. Major Patten, Ft. Ripley's commander ,ordered the troops back from Crow Wing, sent out scouts and issued a thousand ball cartridges to the citizens of Little Falls. The Chippewas hurried in from their sugar bushes and the lumbermen flocked in to Crow Wing. The following May Chaplain Manney was interrupted while planting his garden by by the bugle sounding an alarm. A second and larger Sioux war party had appeared. The blockhouses were made ready. News came that a second Sioux party had taken seven Chippewa scalps near Swan River and that a third were robbing folk upon the Platte River. But thanks to the fort no depredations were committed in this vicinity.

Shortly after this scare Major Patten and half the garrison—there was then a company each of artillery and of infantry—was sent to the Red River to built Ft. Abercrombie. During the Civil War the regulars were withdrawn and companies from various Minnesota regiments detailed there. So frequent these changes that in the 26 years of its existence, Fort Ripley had over 60 commandants.

On the day of the Sioux outbreak in Southern Minnesota, Lucius C. Walker, Chippewa agent, learned that Indians were gathering to attack the Gull River agency. He at once sent a messenger for help to Ft. Ripley, then garrisoned by thirty men of the Fifth Minnesota Infantry. The next morning he, himself, fled. At Crow Wing, encountering twenty soldiers on their way to protect the agency, he ordered them to arrest Hole-in-the-Day; the chief, throwing off his blanket, fled. The squad chased him to his frame house, from where he escaped in a canoe, paddling safely across the river under a fusilade of shots. Warnings were received from the Indian missionary at Gull Lake and rumors spread that the Indians were about to burn Crow Wing and massacre all its inhabitants. The commandant of Ft. Ripley proclaimed martial law and called upon all the settlers to take refuge at the fort. This was already filled with the families of the garrison who were expecting to leave soon to the Civil War. The fears and confusion of the night that followed are vividly painted by one of the women refugees. Ordnance Sergeant Frantzkey could find ammunition for the cannon but none for the rifles. All night by candlebeams bullets were molded and cartridges made, while the block-houses were prepared for a siege. In the wee small hours the refugees were thrown into panic by musket shots. The long roll was beaten by the drummers, at which signal the women and children flocked into the block-houses. But the cause was only an empty canoe some soldiers had fired at. In the morning trenches were dug and outside buildings were burned. At midnight the occupants were cheered by the creaking of army wagons bringing a reinforcement of 80 men.

Meanwhile Agent Walker, still running, encountered his superior, Indian Commissioner Dole at St. Cloud bound for the Red River country. But Walker was too upset to explain the situation. His mind, indeed, was fast giving way; near Monticello he blew out his brains. Dole, abandoning his Red River trip, hastened back to St. Paul, whence at his request Governor Ramsey sent two more companies to the relief of Fort Ripley. About a week later Dole followed, under heavy escort. Upon reaching the Fort, he dispatched a runner summoning Hole-in-the-Day to council.

Hole-in-the-Day has been lauded as the peer of Fennimore Cooper's noblest redmen. In the present instance, however, he displayed only insolence and greed. He ignored the commissioner's messenger. Day after day messengers were sent. Finally on the tenth he moved his camp from Gull Lake to between the agency and Crow Wing and in feathered state appeared, not at the fort, but at the village with an impressive retinue of warriors in war paint. The commissioner, who went there to meet him, found the road and council ground surrounded by 200 warriors. Hole-in-the-Day showed only insolence. On the morrow he did not deign to return. Thereupon Commissioner Dole departed for St. Paul, leaving matters in the hands of Special Agent Merrill, whom he instructed not to issue any further supplies to the Indians.

This order had the effect desired. At a stormy council of the chiefs that night Hole-in-the-Day vainly urged them to plunder the agency. The others feared the three companies of infantry at the fort. In the morning they asked the agent for a new council. At this they agreed to deliver up their plunder and return to the agency. This ended the disturbance.

The long delay in effecting these negotiations threw Southern Minnesota into a panic. Rumors were spread that Hole-in-the-Day was acting in conjunction with the Sioux chief, Little Crow, in an attempt to drive the whites out of Minnesota. Governor Ramsey sent a commission to investigate. Volunteer companies were raised along the border. There is evidence that the influence of the missionaries kept many Chippewas peaceful. In fact only the Leech Lake Pillagers and Gull Lake bands joined in the disturbance, but though Hole-in-the-Day had only 500 warriors, it is certain that had a Chippewa insurrection broken out, the whole nation would have been involved. Thanks to Forty Ripley, Central Minnesota was spared a duplication of the Minnesota valley massacres.

After the Civil War, Fort Ripley was again garrisoned by the regulars. The year of 1868 was marked by the burning of Sergt. Frantzkey's quarters. The sergeant and his four children perished; his wife who escaped was crazed by the flames. Nine years later fire destroyed the officers' quarters, laundries and storehouse. There being no further need for a fort here, it was abandoned, the garrison leaving in July, 1878. The 52 bodies in the Fort cemetery were removed to the National Cemetery at Rock Island, Illinois, and in 1880 the Fort and Reservation sold.

That the annals of Ft. Ripley are not more bloody evidences the efficacy with which it protected this section of our state. The swords of its soldiers have long ago been sheathed or beaten into plowshares. The windows and boards of its buildings have been turned into claim cabins; the stones of its foundations used in the bridge you cross. Like the pioneers it knew, it is gone. But its memory is still cherished. The Crow Wing County Historical Society hopes some day to acquire its site for a Memorial Park.
